

Meet Lynne Hix...

By Lynne Hix

I am originally from Sioux Falls and moved to Rapid City in 2002 after completing my Master's degree at Chadron State College. At that time I was hired by Behavior Management Systems where I worked until 2007. After spending five years encouraging others to pursue their dreams, I decided to take my own advice. I opened Fierce Modeling School and Agency in January of 2008 getting back to something that had been an important part of my life as a child and teen. Fierce Modeling is a place that takes my interest in helping people live their best life and gives them a place to grow. We provide training in Runway modeling, Print Modeling, Etiquette and Acting. We work with all ages, both men and women, however the majority are teen girls. The satisfaction of helping a girl find confidence and become a refined young woman is something that is truly awesome.

We also have the opportunity to work with women that want to be a part of something fun that is "just for them". We also branch off into providing etiquette training for our students and for businesses. This includes both dining and social etiquette, along with business etiquette. Watching our models in a runway show is such a thrill, but the intrinsic value of seeing someone sprout like a flower in the spring is what gets me to work every day. The confidence and skills learned at our agency stay with a person wherever they decide to take life. Whatever the person's motivation, I am truly getting to live my dream of helping other people be successful. On a personal note, I am the Mother of three boys, ages 11, 8 and 4. They keep me busy and and up on all things important such as "Guitar Hero" and "Spongebob Square Pants". I joined Women's Network because of my two great friends Susan Giesel and Dawn Williams that encouraged me to become a part of something that would provide opportunities to meet other women with similar goals.
